

Customer Relationship Summary (Form CRS)

Introduction

Huntleigh Advisors, Inc. (HAI) is a Registered Investment Advisor, registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission. There are different ways you can get help with your investments. As an investment advisor, we provide investment advisory services on both a discretionary and non-discretionary basis and charge our customers an advisory fee based on a percentage of the customer's assets under management. A broker-dealer provides brokerage accounts and services rather than investment advisory services, and generally charges transaction-based fees. Brokerage and advisory services and fees differ, and it is important for the retail investor to understand the differences. Free and simple tools are available for you to use at Investor.gov/CRS, a website maintained by the SEC. These tools can provide you with educational materials about investment advisors, broker-dealers, and investing. This relationship summary provides information that helps you make an informed decision about whether or not to invest with us and will answer some important questions you may have.

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

HAI offers investment advisory services to retail and institutional investors, on either a discretionary or non-discretionary basis. With an advisory account, you will pay an annual fee (billed quarterly) based on a percentage of your assets under management, whether or not we make any trades or offer any advice during that billing period. HAI's advisory services are not offered on a "wrap fee" basis, which means that you will pay for certain brokerage and transaction charges in addition to your advisory fee.

Customers can choose our model portfolios which vary based on the customers' investment strategies and risk tolerance. These accounts are traded on a discretionary basis, which means that HAI has the authority to place trades in the customer accounts without first communicating with the customer. Additionally, customers can choose to have their account representative offer advice and/or make trades in a style agreed upon between the customer and the representative. We refer to these accounts as "Representative Managed."

Representative Managed accounts can be discretionary or non-discretionary. Non-discretionary means that the representative does not have the authority to make trades in your account without first getting the customer's approval.

Account Minimums and Other Requirements: HAI has established a minimum initial account size for new retail accounts of $100,000 or $25,000, depending on the Portfolio you choose. The minimum account size for an institutional account is $1 million. Advisor, in its sole discretion, accepts such lesser amounts as it deems appropriate. You should discuss with your representative what the minimum account size is for any model portfolio which may interest you. HAI also charges a minimum annual fee of $400.

Account Monitoring: Accounts which are invested in our model portfolios are continuously monitored by our portfolio management team. However, continuous account monitoring is not a mandatory service we provide in our Representative Managed accounts. Any monitoring of investments in Representative Managed accounts is incidental to the representative's advisory services, and not supervised by HAI at any specific frequency.

Additional Information: More detailed information about our services, portfolios, fees, account types, and conflicts can be found on our Form ADV, Part 2A brochure which is available here:

Ask your financial professional:

- Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Why or why not?
- How will you choose investments to recommend to me?
- What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education, and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

What fees will I pay?

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying. Brokerage and advisory fees differ.

Your advisory fee is based on a percentage of your assets under management with us. That percentage will be set out in your advisory contract. For some products, we have provided fee schedules based on the product and the amount of assets invested. However, our fees are negotiable based on our customers' specific situations. If you negotiate a fee different from the fee schedule, the new fee must be noted on your contract and initialed.

Because your fee is based on a percentage of your assets, the more assets there are in a retail investor's advisory account, the more a retail investor will pay in fees, and the firm may therefore have an incentive to encourage you to increase the assets in your account.

Your advisory fees do not include the transaction fees and account fees that will be charged to you by the broker-dealer and the bank that has custody of your assets. We recommend using our affiliated broker-dealer, Huntleigh Securities Corporation to carry out the transactions in your account. Huntleigh Securities' transaction fees and costs are more fully described on its Best Interests disclosure which are available here: <https://www.hntlgh.com/wp-content/uploads/2020/06/Fee-Schedule-HSC.pdf>

In addition to the costs described above, other fees the retail investor may pay directly or indirectly include custodian fees, account maintenance fees, fees related to mutual funds and variable annuities, (12(b)-1 fees/trail commissions), and other transactional fees and product-level fees and in the case of variable annuity programs also fees for optionally chosen living or death benefits.

More information on fees charged by our affiliated broker-dealer is available here: www.hntlgh.com/Reg-BI.

Ask your financial professional:

- Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments.
- If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

Standard of Conduct

When we act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

We charge an advisory fee whether we make trades or not. This could create a conflict of interest where we are incented to make fewer trades for your account because we would charge the fee either way. Also, our broker-dealer, Huntleigh Securities (HSC), is affiliated with us through common ownership. You should therefore assume that when Huntleigh Securities makes money on your accounts, we benefit as well. This creates a conflict of interest where we might want to recommend Huntleigh Securities as your broker-dealer so that our affiliate makes more money. A detailed explanation of our relationship with our affiliates and the conflicts that surround this relationship can be found on our Form ADV Part 2A brochure here: <https://www.hntlgh.com/wp-content/uploads/2020/06/Form-ADV-Part2A-HAI-Mindshare-Small-Company-Advisory-Service.pdf>

All of our HAI Traditional Portfolios and Representative Managed accounts will be charged a $7 transaction charge for every trade by HSC. For our MindShare Small Cap and Micro Cap Portfolios, HSC charges $25 for each transaction and for our MindShare Focused Strategy, HSC charges $15 for each transaction. HSC pays its clearing firm $7 per transaction, so HSC makes a profit on trades in the MindShare Portfolios. This creates a conflict where we may be incented to recommend customers choose our MindShare portfolios because the trades make our affiliate more money.

Ask your financial professional: How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

How do your financial professionals make money?

The firm's financial professionals are compensated through a percentage of the advisory fee that is charged to your account. That payout percentage is listed on your advisory contract. Because they receive more money when you invest more money with us, your advisor representative is incented to recommend you increase the size of your investments. Many HAI representatives are also licensed with HSC. Therefore, a representative on a particular HAI account may also be the representative on that customer's account held with HSC. In this instance, there is a conflict in that the representative has the ability to choose which transactions benefits her/him more, a transaction in a client's brokerage account or in the advisory account.

Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history?

Yes, our affiliates and some financial professionals have legal and disciplinary events. For more information, visit Investor.gov/CRS for a free and simple search tool to research you and your financial professionals.
